DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. This application contains claims 28-50 drawn to an invention nonelected with traverse in Paper No. 7. A complete reply to the final rejection must include cancelation of nonelected claims or other appropriate action (37 CFR 1.144) See MPEP § 821.01.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Harrington (US Patent 5,895,454).

Harrington discloses the claimed system including subscription means for users to subscribe to one or more services on one or more channel databases (users register and have access to different services and products available); personalization means for enabling users to indicate personalization options relating to the services (user inputs information personalized to what services they prefer, such as what type of services they want information on); channel databases with informational data about a subject matter of interest for a plurality of subscribers (user query information); service processing means for processing a service for a plurality of subscribers using information from the channel databases (e.g. links user to relating products/services); output forwarding means for automatically forwarding output from the services to subscriber output devices specified for that service (e.g. entertainment, radio, games) and revenue generating means for generating revenue as a result of the output of services to subscribers (administration software handles cost allocations for transactions, e.g. to administrator, telecommunications carrier or third party).

Harrington discloses the claimed device but is somewhat unclear regarding users "subscribing" to the services. It is notoriously old and well known in the art of providing services such as for entertainment (music, video, etc., such as "subscription" fees for cable t.v. service and special channels) and games to charge subscription fees to provide the service provider with income for a service provided over a period of time. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the system of Harrington with the ability to charge "subscription" fees, in order to provide service providers with revenue. All other claimed limitations are either disclosed or inherent.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 3/27/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant has argued that Harrington does not disclose the delivery of personalized information content to subscribers, subscription means, services defined as formatted content sent to subscribers at a certain frequency, and personalization means. Examiner contends that Harrington discloses these limitations. Harrington discloses the delivery of personalized information to the user, which is a subscriber, based on the user's personalized input. For example if a user enters personalized key words related to the services they request into the system of Harrington, the system of Harrington will produce personalized information to the user of related services. This personalized information is provided at a certain frequency, such as at the frequency of how often the user requests the information. The user is a subscriber because the user agrees to receive or be given access to electronic texts or services over the internet. See Dictionary.com reference for further definition.

Examiner believes that potential areas of clarification leading to an allowance may exist and invites Applicant to an in-person interview to further discuss any potential areas.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
